THE WAY TO TYRANNY

Speaking before a group of college students recently, Alexandra Tolstoy, the daughter of Leo Tolstoy, reminded her audience of an amazing similarity between the pronounced aims of a character portrayed in "The Possessed" by Dostoevski, and the apparent aims of fellow-travelers and Marxist-Leninists in the United States today. The comparison is all the more appropriate since Lenin was born just one year before the great Russian novel was written in 1871. The 100th anniversary of birth of Lenin will be celebrated by the communists all over the world on April 22 this year.

The character mentioned by Countess Tolstoy was Verhovensky, described by Dostoevski as a self-styled "revolutionary." Verhovensky says:

"There is only one thing lacking in this world-obedience! Yearning for education is already an aristocratic (capitalist) wish. Where there is family life or love—there is desire for property. We shall kill all such desires. We shall spread drunkenness, gossip, denunciation; we shall create unheard of corruption; we shall exterminate geniuses in their very childhood. We will bring them all to one denominator...absolute equality
...no individualism."

Dostoevski's character, Verhovensky, also described the kinds of people on the side of the Leninists in the United States today with such accuracy that it seems impossible that the words were put on paper nearly 100 years ago:

"Listen," said Verhovensky, "I have counted them all: the teachers, blaspheming God with the children, are already ours! Teenagers, who kill a farmer for the sake of the sensation, are ours! Judges, acquitting criminals, are ours! Prosecutors trembling at court for fear they are not liberal enough, are ours, ours!...corruption is now needed; corruption unheard of before, and vile, when men turn into wicked, cowardly, self-loving and mean wretches—that's what we need!"

Dostoevski could write as he did, not because he had a magic crystal ball, but because he was a student of history. History has already written in blood the rise of tyranny in civilized societies—and it is time for some people today, whether rebellious youth or so-called "liberal" adults, to decide what it is they want and who's side they are on.

The Colonel said: "Give the average man an increase in wages, and he at once begins to look around for fool things to buy."

The Public Service Company of Colorado noted that the average American can buy more than three times as much gasoline with one hour's wages now than he could four decades ago. What's more, the quality of today's motor fuel is vastly superior according to the petroleum industry. In 1928, an average hour's wage in U.S.
manufacturing industries would buy three gallons of gasoline, before taxes, or 2.5 gallons including taxes.
Today's average manufacturing wage of $3 an hour will pay for 12 gallons of gasoline, before taxes, or 8.5 gallons including taxes. As for quality, the motor fuel that was used in the 1920's could not even start today's high-compression automobile engines.

RENT A CASTLE?

Talk about castles in Spain.
The Castles Association, which counts only 1,000 castle buffs around the world as members, reports that the area which today is the Federal Republic of Germany (West Germany) once had as many as 18,000 castles and palaces.

Surprisingly, 15,500 of these edifices are still around.
Of the original number, 2,500 have disappeared entirely and 8,500 are more or less in ruined condition. But 5,000 are still inhabited and 2,000, while unused, are habitable and available.

Give you any ideas? Forget it.

The association says that many of these castles change hands with regularity, generally because the initial enthusiasm at so romantic a possession is soon followed by discouragement at the high cost of upkeep.
They just don't make serfs like they used to.

FOULING OUR OWN NEST

In the newspaper business we get to hear frequently from our numerous readers on farms who complain about people who dump their trash and even garbage along their farm roads, so we've concluded that environment pollution is really a people problem, as well as an industrial problem.

The national Academy of Sciences in cooperation with the highway departments of 29 states has just completed a study and confirms this. It shows a lot of people aren't nearly as concerned about pollution as they profess to be. Each month, American motorists drop an average of 1,304 pieces of trash on every mile of the nation's vast network of primary highways—nearly 16,000 pieces per mile each year. Paper items accounted for 59 per cent of total roadside litter. The rest was tabulated at 16 per cent cans, 6 per cent plastic items, 6 per cent bottles and jars, and 13 per cent miscellaneous.

The largest miscellaneous grouping included tires,
lumber and a variety of unclassified items from hair curlers, underwear and false teeth to ice chests and washing machines.

This is the work of a public that, judging from press accounts and TV commentators, is calling for instant solutions to all environmental problems.

BASEBALL'S HERE AGAIN

Organized baseball enters its 1970 season beset by the usual host of problems. Detroit's ace pitcher, Denny McLain, will not be present when the Detroit Tigers meet the Washington Senators in the traditional presidential opener on Monday April 6. McLain has been suspended pending completion of an investigation by the Baseball Commissioner's office into allegations that the pitcher was linked to a gambling operation. But Detroit need not worry too much about the opener. Gracious hosts, the Senators have managed to lose every Opening Day game since 1962.

Two other clouds threaten to rain on baseball's parade. Ex-St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Curt Flood has gone to court to challenge the legality of baseball's reserve clause, which permits players to be traded like so many chattels. And the prospective shift of the American League Seattle franchise to Milwaukee has done nothing to burnish the image of the national pastime.

Otherwise, the outlook for 1970 is rosy. Cincinnati, Kansas City, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh expect to be playing in new stadiums scheduled for completion this year. The 24 major league teams will receive around $39.1 million for radio-TV rights, according to Broadcasting (Feb. 9, 1970), an increase of more than $1 million over the 1969 season. Now all that baseball has to do is supply four exciting divisional races and a World Series surprise comparable to the New York Mets' triumph of last October. It's a tall order.

One Man's Family. In Toronto, William Bray, arrested for beating up a total stranger, explained to police that he got the wrong address: "I was looking for one of my wife's relatives."

There are lots of happy people, but they are unnoticed because of the noise the wretched make.

What has become of the old fashioned girl who said she would not marry the best man alive?

If a girl is not very good looking, her mother is apt to say she is a great help to her.

who wore a wristwatch was considered a sissy.

SHORT-HAUL TROUBLES

The Smithsonian Institution's Center for Short-Lived Phenomena has just published its annual report containing descriptions of 146 short-lived events around the world which the center participated in during 1969.
Among them were:

64 earth science events, including 18 volcanic eruptions, 23 earthquakes and such other assorted earth science events as landslides, landrises, storm surges and tsunamis (sometimes mislabeled "tidal waves");

51. ecological events, including 11 animal eruptions, migrations and colonizations and 17 major oil spills and pollution events;

21 astrophysical events, including 16 major fireball events and 5 meteorite falls;

7 "Urgent anthropological/urgent archeological events", including the discovery of two hitherto unknown tribes;

Plus a number of other events of interest, including a floating island in the Caribbean, a submarine volcanic eruption in the Solomon Islands and the Indo-Pacific starfish plague.

With short-lived events like these, does Mother Earth
really need the long-term troubles caused by men?

Clyde Wilson says: "Keep your eyes wide open before marriage; after that it doesn't matter so much—you're not going anywhere."

Ben Franklin said it: He that can compose himself, is wiser than he that composes books.

Pete Medley reports on a youngster entering the movie on a child's ticket. The doorman asked:
"When will you be 12, Sonny Boy?"
"Soon's the show's over," replied this Dennis.

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a

he didn't open his mail:

Some 600 million people throughout the world suffer from chronic headaches, often of mysterious origin. A new medical theory holds that a majority of such cases may result from overlooked neck injuries and often can be cured by putting the patient in traction.

Do you bite your fingernails?
That may cause them to grow up to 20 per cent faster than normal, thus giving you still more to

No wonder smart businessmen are courting brides and teen-agers. The average bride spends three times as much for her initial purchases of home furnishings as a typical U.S. family does in a year. As for teen-agers, 17 per cent now own their own television sets, 76 per cent own radios, and 18 per cent own a tape recorder. Teen-agers also account for 25 per cent of the $1 billion a year cosmetics industry.

Speaking of brides again, few of them will start married life in a romantic cottage small by a waterfall. Some will move in with Mom and Dad, and 80 per cent will rent a housekeeping apartment.

Quotable notables: "A

Final Say-so on SST
Rests with Public President Nixon has become the third president in a row to weigh the pros and cons of the supersonic transport and decide that when better planes are built, the United States must build them.

He has asked Congress for an appropriation of $662 million spread over the next five years to underwrite development of the SST. Added to the $623 million appropriated since the Kennedy administration, this would total more than $1.28 billion for building and testing
two prototypes of the plane.

The willingness of three administrations to bankroll the SST can perhaps be discounted on the grounds that it is not their money, only the people's.
But Boeing Co., which would build the plane, and the airlines which would fly it are also enthusiastic about spending millions of their own money on its development.

Boeing foresees eventually sales of 500 SSTs for about $40 million each, more than enough to pay back the government's investment, with interest.

Another incentive is competition with the British-French Concord and Russian Tupolev supersonic jets, which have already been testflown and will be in service

at least six years before the American SST.

But where these planes will carry about 150 passengers at 1,400 miles an hour, the SST will carry nearly 300 at 1,800 m.p.h. It could travel between New York and London in a mere three hours or between San Francisco and Tokyo in 4 1/2 hours.

There is one phase of the air transport competition where American has the entire field to itself. Making their debut within the next few years will be the supersonic jumbo jets, capable of carrying as many as 500 passengers in economy seating or fewer passengers in something approaching ocean liner luxury.

A good question might be:
Does it make more economic sense to carry half as many passengers twice as fast, or twice as many passengers half as fast?
The jumbo jets will not be sluggish craft. Their cruising speed—around 600 m.p.h.—will equal the speed the SST will have to be confined to over land because of the sonic boom effect. It is only over open ocean that the SST's immense speed advantage can be exploited.

That raises another question:
Will intercontinental passengers be willing to pay premium fares to ride the SST, or will they opt for the slower jumbos, whose huge carrying capacities are expected to make possible crucial reductions in long-haul air fares?

The President thinks there is a need and a market for both types of plane. So do the airlines. But only the traveling public can give the final answer.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

—By Jack Anderson—

WASHINGTON -- A special task force of Internal Revenue agents has moved into Alabama to investigate charges of corruption in the administration of former Governor George Wallace and his late wife, Lurleen.

The tax probe, which began on a small scale during the Johnson administration, has focused on the backdoor activities of Gerald Wallace, the former governor's brother, law partner and political confidant.

Gerald Wallace, a slight, bespectacled man of 50, has fallen into sudden wealth since his famous brother became Governor in 1962. Although Gerald was only three years out of law school and seldom appeared in court, he has funneled enough money through his law office to move from a modest apartment to a lush, 315-acre estate farm.

He lives the life of a rich country squire on his new estate, which contains a private swimming pool, scenic views and wooden dock with an elegant,
many-sided gazebo at the end.
He has even constructed special quarters for his hunting dogs and their attendants.

ALLEGED KICKBACKS
The government is investigating charges that Gerald Wallace and Rankin Fite, the mighty Speaker of Alabama's House of Delegates, collected kickbacks on state and federal highway contracts. Part of the money is alleged to have been turned over to George Wallace to fuel his 1968 presidential campaign, in which he promised to restore "law and order" to the nation.

Fite allegedly turned the kickbacks over to Gerald Wallace. Both men vigorously denied any wrongdoing.

The task force is also looking into a possible link between Gerald Wallace and Alabama's notorious liquor agent system, under which political cronies of the reigning governor collect fat fees on the sale of liquor to the me right now," he said bitterly.

Confidential field reports,
made available to this column,
quote Alabama informants, as saying that Gerald Wallace has boasted of receiving $400,000 in commissions on state liquor sales. In Alabama, all liquor is sold in state-owned stores.

The Internal Revenue Service's audit division, in its confidential findings, has alleged that Gerald Wallace omitted legal-fee income from his tax returns in 1967 and 1968. After deducting large losses from his cattle farm, he reported a total taxable income of $109,944 in 1967 and $65,980 in 1968.

PROBE EXPANDED
Last January 20, the case was referred to Internal Revenue's crack intelligence division, which handles criminal investigations.
A group of agents from various southern offices was immediately assembled in Alabama.

They have expanded the probe until it now includes alleged kickback schemes involving state highway paving contracts, textbook sales, engineering contracts and misuse of funds at the state docks in Mobile.

The federal agents are also asking questions about the following state political figures:
Attorney General MacDonall
Gallion, State Treasurer Agnes Baggett, former State Finance
Director Seymour Strammell, Feaster and his assistant, Jim Scott, and State Senators
Roland Cooper and Alton Turner.

It should be emphasized, of course, that the investigation is still in its preliminary stages, and no formal charges have been brought against anyone.

My associate, Britton Hume, flew to Montgomery, Ala., to discuss the investigation with Gerald Wallace. He acknowledged that he was under tax investigation.

One of the primary advantages of newspaper advertising is its ability to span all age, economic and social levels. The newspaper advertiser not only reaches all groups on a

as they grow, over the years and generations.

On a day to day basis,
newspaper advertising tells

Please don't throw food and half-filled cups of coffee and soda pop into the waste basket. It makes a terrible mess. If you will just leave it on the desk we'll take care of it. Water your own plants, feed your fish, etc. We aren't gardeners or zoo keepers.

Please return the soft drink bottles to the vending machine. It's a long walk for a person who must make several trips an evening.

I'm not even mentioning what supposedly refined and educated people do in office washrooms. You wouldn't print it and most people wouldn't believe it. Thanks a million. — Midnight Minnie

Dear Min: If nobody mounts this column on the bulletin board of the office where you have the most trouble, I hope you will.

Dear Ann Landers: I was the eldest in a large family. Because there were so many of us, Mother had to depend on help from the older children — mainly me.

My earliest memories are of messy diapers, runny noses and crying brats. All I ever wanted was to be free of it. I swore I'd never have any children. Never.

Then I met and married a wonderful man who said he didn't care about children either. All he wanted was me. We were very happy for several years, at least I thought so. Now he tells me his ideas have changed. He wants a family. Every time he mentions the subject I have an attack of nerves.

Shall I have a child (at age 30) and despise it, or stick to my position and take a chance on losing the man I love? — Betrayed

Dear B.: Your feelings about children are grossly immature. I suggest counseling. You'll probably lose the man either way if you don't grow up and stop being so self-centered.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 23, divorced and have two small boys. I work in a pastry shop from 8:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. I live with my widowed mother and an unmarried brother who is 20.

The only fun I get out of life is dancing. For evenings a week my brother drives me to a roadside tavern where the music is out of sight. I dance with the guys, have a few drinks and go home by taxi.

The women at work say I shouldn't go to this place

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT YOUR PRESCRIPTION:

What it is...and what it isn't

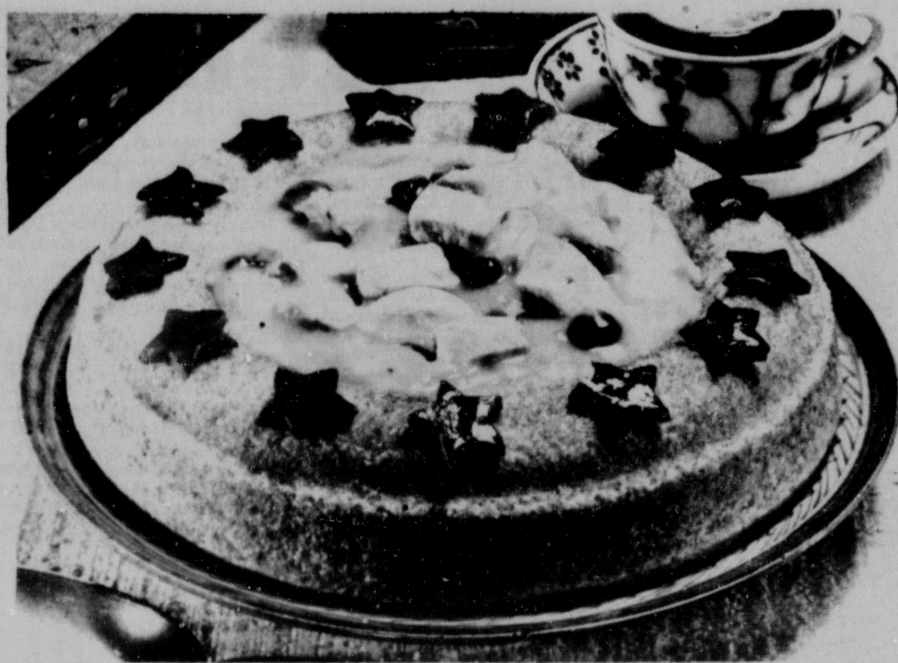

Your prescription is an order for a specific medication, for a specific individual, for a specific time. It is originated by your doctor and filled by your Registered Pharmacist. Today's prescription consists of eight specific and essential parts:

1. Date — included to verify the medicine is applicable to a current illness.
2. Name and address — so that none but the patient may use the prescription.
3. Superscription — "Rx" — the symbol generally believed derived from the Latin "recipe" meaning "take thou."
4. Inscription — the name and quantity of each ingredient prescribed.
5. Subscription — directions to the pharmacist explaining dosage, form and quantity of the pharmaceutical.
6. Signature — directions to the patient on quantity, timing and method of taking the prescription.
7. Refill information — for use by the pharmacist to facilitate service to the patient.
8. Signature — of the prescribing physician to verify the order.

Your prescription obviously is more than phrases written on a piece of paper. It represents a lifegiving force which enables us all to live longer, healthier, happier lives.

1 broiler-fryer chicken, whole or cut in serving pieces
2 cups water
2 teaspoons salt, divided
1 medium onion, sliced
2 ribs celery with leaves

3 tablespoons flour
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/4 cup raisins
2 tablespoons diced crystallized ginger
2 hard-cooked eggs, sliced
13 pimiento stars*

BAD DREAM

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — Tony Rose thought he was having a nightmare. He woke to find his horse galloping away with his bed — and himself still in it.

On an overnight camping trip with his horse, Roadrunner, professional horse trainer Rose camped alongside the road at nightfall, fastened his steed to his camp bed and went to sleep. Roadrunner was probably frightened by a snake and made off, dragging bed and master behind him. Rose, clad only in shorts, managed to roll off the bed. He stopped a passing car and gave chase, but it took a police patrol car to stop the runaway.

Entries Sought

SEDALIA - Entries are already beginning to roll in for the Annual Sedalia Jaycees Memorial Day Weekend Race at the Missouri State Fairgrounds, Sunday May 31st.

The yearly combined stock and supermodified racing activities are sponsored by the Sedalia Jaycees and are held solely for the benefit for charitable organizations in Central Missouri.

Last year, more than 11,000 racing enthusiasts witnessed the event.

In addition to the afternoon's speed program, live country and western entertainment will be provided by one of Central Missouri's most renowned singing stars, Monty Davidson from Carrollton, Mo.

The musical entertainment will begin at 8 while the time trials get underway at 10:30.

More than 100 cars are expected to be entered in the racing events, with a $4,200 guaranteed purse at stake.

The stock cars and the supermodifieds will be broken down into an equal number of heats, following the time trials, with a consolation supermodified and feature races in both divisions scheduled also.

Race chairmen have already received entries from many outstanding drivers, among those IMCA sprint car driver Jerry Blundy of Galesburg, Ill.

Blundy has posted more feature wins on one mile dirt tracks than any other driver in America.

Other noted drivers who will be battling for a share of the purse will be Bill Utz of Sedalia, Thad Doshier of Topeka, Kan., as well as three of the top Kansas City drivers in Bob Williams, Dick Stultiff and Jay Woodside.

Roy Hibbard, the defending champion of the supermodified feature event, will also be entered, trying for two in a row.

A large and fast field of late models is also expected by race committee chairman.

Parma Has New Fishing Lake

PARMA—One of the area's most modern fishing lakes opened near Parma Sunday with about 100 persons dropping their lines into the 3½ acre lake which is operated by the Lions Club and Fire department.

More than 4,000 pounds of catfish were awaiting the first lines of the season.

The lake was constructed on city property, three blocks North of Gee's gin.

Floyd Cravens will serve as Lake manager, operating the bait shack which will be equipped with all types of bait.

A grand opening is planned for later in the season.

Also scheduled for construction at the site is a park, which will be built from proceeds from the lake, on Lions club property.

City alderman, Ted Morgan, invites all area fishermen to try their luck at the new lake.

Signs, which will direct the way to the lake, are expected to be erected this week.

CITY MARSHALL, Hollis "Doc" Lindley assisted in the stocking of the city lake. He dumps a washtub load of catfish into the newly constructed lake at Parma.

Lakes Take Lead With 119-115

ATLANTA (AP)—"It seems like all we did in the second half was shoot free throws."

Guard Jerry West had that explanation Sunday as the Los Angeles Lakers, hitting 47 of 60 charity tosses, came from behind to down the Atlanta Hawks 119-115 in the opening game of their best-of-seven series for the National Basketball Association's Western Division championship.

The two teams clash again here Tuesday.

West, who combined with forward Elgin Baylor to lead the Laker assault from the line, pointed to the obvious. Los Angeles can't 35 of 40 charity shots in the second half and, in the process, overcame a 16-point Atlanta lead.

Baylor said the rash of Atlanta fouls was prompted by big Walt Chamberlain, who only recently returned to the Laker lineup after knee surgery.

"When we pass to Walt," he said, "everybody starts breaking. There's an inclination for the opposing team to look back momentarily and, when we take off, they've been caught in that split second. The natural move of the man guard you is to try to slow you down without getting caught by the officials."

Atlanta Coach Richie Guerin disagreed, however, and said the Lakers "didn't get that many fouls off the cutoff situations."

He also was somewhat brusque when asked why his team was nabbed for so many fouls in the second half.

"You're asking that question in the wrong room," he declared. "Go in there where (game officials Mindy) Rudolph and (Manny) Sokol are."

Atlanta, primarily behind the brilliant play of Walt Bellamy, took a 28-26 lead in the first quarter, stretched it to 67-62 at intermission, then ran into trouble after building a 16-point edge midway of the third period.

Los Angeles cut the margin to 98-88 at the end of the third and finally went ahead to stay on two foul shots by Baylor with 2:03 remaining.

West, with 38 points including 18 of 21 free throws, led the Laker attack although Baylor, with 14 of 18 charity tosses, finished with 30. Walt Hazzard was high for Atlanta with 29 points.

ABA Owner Dims Merger Light

NEW YORK (AP) — There is no agreement on moving the Washington club of the American Basketball Association to the National Basketball Association as part of a merger deal, says Earl Foreman, owner of the Washington franchise.

Foreman told The Associated Press by telephone from Washington Sunday:

"I'm not aware of any agreement reached between the two merger committees and I was there every minute."

Sam Shulman of the NBA's Seattle franchise had announced Saturday that the three-man merger committees, which met in Palm Springs, Calif., had agreed in principle on the following:

The ABA would pay the NBA an $11 million

Bellamy, who hit 12 points and snagged eight rebounds in his big first quarter, finished with 24 points and 21 rebound. At the same time, he limited Chamberlain to 16 points and 17 rebounds.

The eventual winner of the Western Division will meet the Eastern Division champ—either Milwaukee or New York—for the NBA title. That series, with New York holding a 1-0 lead, resumes tonight in New York.

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Pitcher Tom Seaver, who could have reveled in a rare day of robust hitting, instead chose to dwell on his faults in the New York Mets' 6-4 victory Sunday over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I felt strong but ragged, very ragged," said the 25-year-old hero of last year's Met climb to baseball's World Championship.

"Anytime you can give up four runs and still win you feel you're stealing," Seaver added. He abetted his cause with a single and a double for three runs.

"It's gratifying, because I never seem to pitch well early in the season anyway," he said. "I didn't have the control I like to feel I'm going to have as the season progresses."

Seaver, who surrendered nine hits and needed relief from Ron Taylor with two out and the bases loaded in the eighth, cited two pitches thrown Cardinal catcher Joe Torre.

"Those two hits he got were not off bad pitches, but they weren't good enough," he said. "If I'm pitching well I can make him hit the ball on the ground."

Torre's double on a bloop to right field that barely stayed fair keyed a two-run Cardinal flurry in the fourth inning.

The Cardinals scored again in the sixth after Torre singled to load the bases and chased Seaver in the eighth after Richie Allen homered and Joe Hague and Julian Javier produced twoout singles.

The 6-foot-1, 205-pound Met right-hander might have exited earlier had he not backed up first base during a try for a double play the Mets messed up in the sixth.

The bases were loaded as Hague drove a ball sharply to Met first baseman Donn Clendenon, who rifled a throw to shortstop Bud Harrelson for a force.

Harrelson's return was high in the attempt to complete the twin-killing, but Seaver retrieved the ball behind first and threw out Allen trying to score from third.

"If you can help yourself not only by hitting but by fielding you're putting yourself ahead," Seaver said. "If you can do all jobs, you increase your percentage for winning."

"I've always been able to do fairly well with the bat," he added.

The victory gave the Mets the series 2-1. The New Yorkers open their home season Tuesday night against the Pirates, while the Cardinals remain home to face Montreal.

Razor Blade Will Remove Glue From Metal Cabinet

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I think the safest way for Ruth to remove glue from her metal kitchen cabinet is to scrape it off carefully with a razor blade. (Polly's note: Use a single-edged, safety razor blade and be very careful not to gouge into the metal.) I had this problem with my bathroom vanity and the razor blade worked beautifully.—JOSIE

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I wonder if any readers could tell me how to make handcrafted flowers of burlap. I know it is cut into squares and then threaded out to give a lacy effect. I need someone to tell me how to proceed.—MRS. J. J.

DEAR POLLY—To get the attention of a deaf person in another part of the house, arrange a signal for turning on a light in a certain location. This saves going after them. They see the light and come to you.—GAY

DEAR POLLY—My canned-goods cupboard is so high I can only see the front row. This row holds only one of a kind. I turn a can upside down if there is one like it just behind. If a can in this front row is right-side up, I know there is no duplicate behind it and it is time to buy some more.—MRS. L. R. B.

DEAR POLLY—I hope you do not mind a major sending in a Pointer. It is one of my pet peeves that there are very few of the many detergent boxes that can be put in a garbage can. Run hot water in them and get out the last of the soap. Then they will fold down and roll up and take only a small space in the can. Certainly makes the wash room look nicer.—MAJOR D. A. H.

Of course, we are all delighted to hear from a major.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—Those of us who carry five or 10 pounds too much find our girdles cut us in half while putting on our stockings. I suggest that you try putting stockings on first and then pull on the girdle. There will be less huffing and puffing.

When knitting, rather than tie knots in the work, bring in a new thread and knit along with the end of the old thread for about five stitches. Let the tiny ends fall loose inside whatever you are knitting. This makes a good, tight and comfortable bond.

Instead of emptying a five-pound bag of flour into your canister, just cut off bag top, place the whole thing in the canister and use it from the bag. Saves all kinds of dust, spills, etc., made getting the flour into the canister.—JULIA

Feminists Protest

TV Commercials

NEW YORK (AP) — There is representative: "I think that a minority of women in this would upset me if I were a lady. country who would like to slap a sticker on to every television set. Lately, however, the guy has saying: 'This commercial unfair shown a little manners.'"

When I first saw the new commercial for Tab without cyclamates I thought it was a great take-off on the "Guys and Dolls" type Broadway review. But one feminist demanded, "What do they mean, 'Tab is good enough for guys now?'"

Another commercial that gets their dander up is Virginia Slims. They ask, "Is this what we've come a long way for? To have our own cigarette?" Besides the commercials, Miss Keck complains about the image of women that is perpetuated in the entertainment programs. She is a housewife. She is beautiful. She is not very smart; or she is clever and manipulates her husband. In the meantime, the feminists also are very mad.

At Greenbrier Sikeston insurance man Francis X. Schumacher attended Occidental Life of California Top Club sales convention at the Greenbrier Resort, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. last week.

Incidentally, many commercials have become quite hip, setting standards for the movies and the rest of television. But the detergent commercials still plod along as they did 20 years ago.

One commercial these women say is antifeminine is that for Silva Thin cigarettes. The guy is always grabbing his cigarette package away from an admiring girl and showing her into a cable car or a taxi. Once he dumped her out in the middle of nowhere.

March 12, 1970
Mr. Charles Blanton
Sikeston, Mo. 63801
Dear Charley:

Grace sent me the achievement edition of your paper. I haven't had a chance to go through it carefully, but I have just thumbed through the pages and I think this is by far the best paper you have gotten out. Your picture work is in a class by itself; so much better than the Missourian.

It looks like Southeast Missouri is on the boom. Looks like our town is going to show a very healthy gain in population and I am sure the aluminum in New Madrid will be a big help to Sikeston.

When old age creeps up on a fellow you don't get a chance to get out much. Why don't you drop by and see me sometime when you are going through Cape. The Blanton family is tops in my book and I have enjoyed their association for many years.

Kindest regards and best wishes.
Sincerely,
R. E. L. Lamkin

Letter To The Editor
Mr. Blanton

The courts of Sikeston ought to be proud, to ask a preacher 3 times if he was telling the truth, while under oath, and who can blame Rev. Lohrmann for raising his voice if he sees his boy taken away to a jail cell and no one trying to explain why, who wouldn't, I also wonder if Mr. Glover has ever open the Bible to see if the word damn is written there.

And lets be realistic can you see a preacher attacking Chief Bruce, a man twice as big as he is, Mr. Drumm and Mr. Sickal had better hang on to their jobs cause they are appointed. And tell me what officer would take the stand against their superior, not a damn one.

Its time the police force realized they are working for the city of Sikeston not the chief and its time the city council to get some back bone and let chief Bruce know he is working for them, or is that too much to ask?

Charley Hill
Sikeston, Mo.
P. S. Let us not forget that preachers are human beings to, they have feeling, desires and needs, let no one kid you when a person is going or thinks he is going to die, the preacher is the first one he asks for. And take it from me where preachers go, its not going to be too crowded, but where I'll wind up I'll see a lot of you that's reading this paper today.

Trio Asks for 100 Per Cent Welfare Hike

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Three welfare recipients from St. Louis and Kansas City demanded from Gov. Warren E. Hearnes Thursday a 100 per cent increase in welfare grants if the income tax bill is approved by the voters next Tuesday.

The three women met with the governor for an hour after failing in an effort to confront him with their demands at the governor's urban affairs conference Wednesday night. Hearnes told them meeting such a demand would increase state welfare costs by $165 million a year. The income tax law would produce only $106 million in 18 months of collections, he said.

The welfare coalition which the women said they represented also called the income tax law a piece of blackmail because welfare recipients "are being threatened with reductions of their already inadequate welfare grants if the proposition fails."

Hearnes told them it wasn't blackmail at all. He said he has told all Missourians what failure of the income tax law will mean in welfare, mental health, education and other services the state provides.

He also demanded the implementation of a simplified system of eligibility by declaration. Hearnes told the three women that to simplify it too much might mean extended welfare to those who no longer need it.

He said that would mean real needy persons couldn't be added because people who didn't need help refused to get off the rolls.

They had little to say during the session about their demand that Proctor N. Carter state welfare director and the St. Louis welfare director, J. P. Lynes, submit their resignations at once.

Carter was present during the hour-long discussion.

The women identified themselves as:

Mrs. Dorothy Henderson of Kansas City, a recipient with her family of aid to dependent children, who said she represented the national welfare rights organization.

Mrs. Dorothy C. Brown of St. Louis, also an ADC, who said she represented the welfare action for social and political changes.

Mrs. Elberta Brewer of St. Louis, an ADC recipient, too, who said she was co-chairman of the league for adequate welfare.

miles were all narrow pavements having a width of less than 20 feet. This included the 20-foot lip type pavement of which Missouri had some 200 miles.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Television's 23 new fall shows—premiered Wednesday night—look for the most part like more of the same. Ten are dramas, often heavy, with titles like "The Young Lawyers," "The Storefront Lawyers," and "The Interns." Nine are situation comedies including such familiar figures as Danny Thomas, Andy Griffith and Mary Tyler Moore. One is live pro football. Two are variety shows—Tim Conway's on CBS and Flip Wilson doing his standup comedy on NBC. Red Skelton is classified as the 23rd new show in his 20th TV year because he is switching from CBS to NBC and cutting back from one hour to 30 minutes. Many handsome new action-adventure in the performers are presented as ABC Revolutionary War and launches 12 new shows, CBS 6, "Barefoot in the Park" starring a young Negro couple—Scoey Mitchell and Tracy Reed.

The three networks presented their new offerings for about 500 members and guests of the TV Academy. Some were shown with film clips, others described by producers.

A loud burst of applause met ABC's announcement it will air National Football League games on Monday nights. Other well-received shows, mostly in familiar molds:

DENTIST FRAUD

ARUSHA, Northern Tanzania (AP) — Bush "dentists" in the Kilimanjaro Region of northern Tanzania have been making an easy living by telling mothers that their babies' first teeth are "nylon." They charge one pound to remove the teeth with a sharp knife.

An official warning poster issued by the Regional Medical Officer says that a number of children aged between six and twelve months have been seriously injured by the self-styled dentists. The poster points out that the sicknesses which the "dentists" claim are symptomatic of "nylon teeth" are characteristic of normal teething, and warns parents not to be misled by the slick talking tricksters.

Step-up in Terror By Extremists?

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — This reporter's contacts among the activist groups believe the violent left will turn from destroying property to destroying people.

(Some anticipate political assassinations. But these predictions are based on trends, not certain knowledge.)

As for the facts:

- Pamphlets now distributed tell in minute detail how to maim policemen.
- Home addresses of police are being publicized to subject their families to harassment.
- Some explosives found and disarmed were set to go off in schools and stores at hours when the killings and injuring of men, women and children would have been terrible indeed.

The violent ones face problems. Their influence declines. They become isolated from most college youths. They fail at recruiting in most high schools. Moderates turn their backs. Even most radicals recoil. They draw within themselves. They splinter on personality and tactical quibbles. As their influence dies, they grow desperate. Each splinter attempts to outdo the other.

They feed on public attention. They live in violence. (It is not certain that bombings are the work of the violent left or right. Terrorism attracts anonymous thrill seekers.)

The best-known violent groups have well-defined aims. Their targets are carefully chosen.

They want society to strike back. They want the police to get frightened and rough. They want the courts to be harsh. They want to provoke repression. They aim at causing the Fascist state. Enough repression, they believe, will bring a revolution. They will lead it.

When we talk of these violent extremists we are not dealing in vague numbers. Nationwide the total is certainly less than 1,000. Perhaps it is less than 200.

At any given scene there may also be hangers-on and onlookers. There will also be nonextremists caught up in the emotions and excitement of the moment.

Violent group leaders are normally from well-to-do families. Some are aided by people of wealth and unscrupulous lawyers. Some are guided behind the scenes by older men who find their younger protégés on.

Some of the violent ones have quite high IQs as we measure such things conventionally. But most are emotionally unstable.

What they are concerned with is power, not morality. Privately they will admit to a scorn for both the blue collar and white collar "classes" and for most of their "intellectual" colleagues. Like the Nazis, they see themselves as "superior" men and women, destined to rule. They, therefore, regard themselves as above morality in any sense you wish to define morality.

In short, these are not earnest, idealistic college youths striking at the evils of society, any more than Hitler was. He talked in glowing terms, too.

These are misfits, rejected by their fellows, but capable of a great deal of damage in the period ahead.

The 97th Bomb Wing and Buttville Air Force Base became a part of 2nd Air Force in July 1959.

Thirteen of the new bomber and tanker units reassigned to 2nd Air Force had formed the 97th Bomb Wing during the 15 years its headquarters was at Westover AFB, Mass.

Two other California units, the 93rd Bombardment Wing at Travis AFB, and the 916th Air Refueling Squadron at Travis AFB, were reassigned to Second Air Force in a way that placed Grand Forks AFB, N.D., under Fifteenth Air Force. This exchange of bases was designed to give each numbered air force greater mission capability among its bases.

The move will produce an estimated savings of approximately $15.3 million annually.

Although the reorganization of numbered air forces and subordinate units started April 1, it is not expected to be completed until June 30.

The 97th Bomb Wing and Buttville Air Force Base became a part of 2nd Air Force in July 1959.

Thirteen of the new bomber and tanker units reassigned to 2nd Air Force had formed the 97th Bomb Wing during the 15 years its headquarters was at Westover AFB, Mass.

Two other California units, the 93rd Bombardment Wing at Travis AFB, and the 916th Air Refueling Squadron at Travis AFB, were reassigned to Second Air Force in a way that placed Grand Forks AFB, N.D., under Fifteenth Air Force. This exchange of bases was designed to give each numbered air force greater mission capability among its bases.

The move will produce an estimated savings of approximately $15.3 million annually.

Although the reorganization of numbered air forces and subordinate units started April 1, it is not expected to be completed until June 30.

Minister's Son-- Enviably Edge

By DAVID POLING

No boy sets out to be the son of a minister. It is a special designation that goes with being part of a minister's family. Youngsters raised in the manse discover that they were somewhere along the way inducted into the worldwide fellowship of P.K.s (Preachers' Kids). Certain other forces come into play: Church members are sure that the pastor's son is either more pious or wilder than the rest in Sunday School and this gives the boy some incentive to perform up to expectations.

The handle sticks. In school and college, our young man from the manse is reminded of not only his father's calling but the whole stream of church history, Christian ethics and the general baggage of how the women's association feels about his wardrobe, hair style and smoking habits. Yet out of this pressure existence an unusual number of talented, gifted and creative individuals have emerged.

In our American community there are top people in public life who trace their beginnings to the preacher's household. In politics, Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., is the son of a Methodist minister.

Adam Clayton Powell may be the most controversial congressman around but there has never been any doubt in the religious community that his father was one of the most able and beloved clergymen in Harlem's history. Many other ministers' sons have been active in public life with Woodrow Wilson reaching the presidency.

In the world of entertainment actor David Hartman, pianist Roger Williams and vocalist John Davidson all are products of the minister's family. Television personality David Frost and N.Y. Times financial columnist Robert Mercer are card-carrying P.K.s. Martin Luther King Jr. and Albert Schweitzer were distinguished sons of ministers.

J. C. Penney, distinguished in American business has given much time, energy and money to assisting clergymen, missionaries and church workers. The Memorial Home Community in Penney Farms, Florida, was established for retired ministers who had no funds or residence in their later years.

Why do ministers' sons make it in spite of the drawbacks - real or imagined?

For one thing, they are used to the public. Week by week they see their father in leadership of groups, boards and public assembly. All of those men named above are at home with an audience. This is part of the background inherent to the pastor's life and it is a natural experience for his children.

Secondly, a minister's family does not see a lot of money. Salary is on the low side, so a son of the manse learns early to carry a paper, wait table and change tires at the local garage. He has to earn what he has and budget carefully to pay for a sports coat or save up for a dance. And lastly he is exposed to all the drama, heartache, misery and joy of life. His father's work and sensitivity to human need is a daily happening.

A child discovers a world view that is compassionate and understanding - and this may be the best event in any home.

Ticket-Splitter--- Selective Voter

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The important 1970 elections, with so much at stake for both major parties, will probably witness proportionately more voting than ever by Americans whose ties with those parties seem to be weakening.

There are different ways to define these so-called independent voters. Some political scholars and poll analysts judge them by how they see themselves. In other words, if voters tell professional questioners they are independents, they are so recorded in polls and other tabulations.

By this gauge, we come out in this country with something like 30 per cent of the U.S. electorate perceiving itself as "independent." By a couple of points, incidentally, that is more than rate themselves as Republicans. (The Democratic figure is 42 per cent.)

Obviously, the percentages vary greatly geographically and among differing groups in society. Some 44 per cent of college students, for instance, think of themselves as independent in political attitude, and that percentage rises to 50 on northern campuses.

But there is another key perspective on the "independent." It weighs not his self-perception, but what he actually does at the polls. In the simplest terms, the measure put on this voter is his tendency to split his voting between the two party tickets which confront him.

Walter de Vries of the University of Michigan finds this a strikingly increased factor in modern U.S. politics. The Gallup organization's queries disclosed that in 1968 some 54 per cent of voting Americans actually split their tickets as they chose candidates.

Only two or three decades ago, 80 to 90 per cent of American voters were voting straight party lines.

In De Vries' view, the 54 per cent figure is the real benchmark on independent voters, not the 30 per cent "perception" figure. Plainly, many Americans who call themselves Democrats or Republicans really vote as independents.

Moreover, the view of present-day politics held by these ticket-splitters is markedly different from that of the strong "party identifiers" who tend to stick to party lines rigidly.

Among the independents, defined as the splitters, the first big thing weighed is the candidate's qualities and his perceived ability to "handle the job," whether at the time he is in office or out.

The ticket-splitters give second highest consideration to the issues that are troubling them, and plainly their view of the candidates is strongly affected by their judgment as to how fully and effectively they may be able to deal with those issues they rate as prime.

Undecided voters have always given the pollsters fits. It is the opinion of at least some of the specialists in the more advanced political techniques that the splitter and the undecided voter are the same breed.

A notable, demonstrable phenomenon is that splitting is growing all the time. Where once a fair proportion of voters might vote for one party's presidential nominee but then go "regular" through the rest of the slate, now millions are picking and choosing carefully among the various party candidates for a sizable range of state offices.

Cotton Committee Makes 5-Year Study

COLUMBIA — Southeast Missouri's cotton industry development steering committee members report that strides have been made toward many of their goals, in spite of weather that has cooperated only one year in the last four to produce good crops. The committee has been convened by Chairman E.B. Gee, Jr., to review progress made toward the program set out by the cotton industry committee five years ago.

"The odds against having three bad years in a row for cotton are huge — but we have them," Leonard Hand, meteorologist, commented after a recent committee meeting at the University of Missouri Delta Center, Portageville.

Cotton still holds a prominent place in the Delta economy and when the area gets back to normal seasons, the committee believes the advances that have been made will enable the Delta to improve its position in the worldwide cotton industry.

The committee saw good progress in the following recommendations made after a study five years ago.

(1) The committee had recommended continued efforts by cotton producers to put as much land as possible to grade for drainage and irrigation purposes. Records show a jump from 57,000 acres put to grade in the Delta in 1965 to around 200,000 acres today.

(2) Responding to the recommendation for improvement in farm record keeping, the University Extension Production Credit Assn., and Farmers Home Administration workers have been cooperating in management schools. A number of banks and lending agencies have been offering assistance with record keeping. As one result of this and other educational efforts, financing for both irrigation and land leveling has become more readily available.

(3) Responding to a request for more cost and returns information to guide leaders and investors, Extension and a number of farmers are cooperating on irrigation record studies. Figures on one year's results are available.

(4) Weather recording, reporting, and forecasting was pointed out as a need in the Delta to guide planting, tending, and irrigation of cotton crops. This being done on a daily basis now.

(5) Research to develop new cotton varieties that will produce higher yields of high quality cotton was urged. Two new varieties, MoDel and Delcot 277, have been developed at the Delta Center. Delcot 277 holds especially great promise.

(6) Expanded soil testing and plant tissue testing services at the University Delta Center were urged to guide farmers in use of fertilizer. This goal has been met with the addition of equipment at the center that will test for trace elements and arrangements for tissue testing services with commercial laboratories.

(7) Improvement in soil sampling on farms was urged by the cotton committee five years ago and the committeemen agreed much improvement had been achieved in samples now coming into the Delta center. The improvement was credited to Extension's educational work with farmers.

(8) Develop enterprises that can make use of idle labor between cotton crop operations. University Extension workers have provided educational services on livestock feeding and other enterprises that help fill in the gaps. Many young farmers, especially, have taken advantage of these opportunities.

Feeding of both cattle and hogs is expanding rapidly. Feasibility of establishing a packing plant is under study. There is strategically located between the Ozark feeder calf and feeder pig production areas and the big consumer centers.

Information programs on weed control and insect reporting services also received much attention and brought favorable reports. Improvements in the adaptation of farm machinery to cotton production were also praised. Missouri cotton is moving well in market channels where it met some discrimination five years ago.

The Cotton Council is recommending that the industry go to net weight and automatic sampling, although this goal has not yet become a reality. A research worker on weed control and an entomologist have been added to the Delta Center staff as recommended. The position for an agricultural engineer was approved but a worker has not yet been found available.

Eternal Flame

Honors Dead

EAST PRAIRIE — An eternal flame will be placed by the monument of the East Prairie war dead, near city hall. The flame will be purchased by the VFW organization and the city will install it and pay the gas bill.

Bill Reeves, representing the VFW presented the request to the City Council.

City Manager, Glen Huntington stated that the present monument lists the dead from World War I, World War II and the Korean War but is now filled with no space left for the Vietnam listings. A second monument was discussed but no decision was reached by the councilmen.

to fill it. An engineer could help greatly with studies and education on equipment, irrigation, and stripper cotton development.

Two men agronomy agents have been added to the Delta district Extension staff and a pathologist has been added to spend half time on research and half time on Extension problems in plant diseases.

The committee is now establishing new goals and updating plans for the coming five years. After views of researchers and educators are obtained, subcommittees from various segments of the industry will be consulted for further recommendations.

For the future, committee members Hilton L. Brancy, Portageville, and Victor Downing, Bragg City, felt public relations would become an increasingly important problem for all agricultural industries. Other problems they believe will require attention are pollution control, insecticides and herbicides that can meet approval, increase of cotton base on farms best adapted to cotton, practical programs for part-time farms, research on irrigation, development of new crops, and further reduction of cultural and harvesting labor requirements.

Idle Acreage Goal Appears On Target

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department's target for idling 38 million acres from feed grain production this year appears within reach, according to farmer sign-up reports. Officials said Wednesday farmers agreed to divert 38,850,486 acres from production of corn, sorghum and barley under the 1970 acreage program at the end of the annual sign-up period April 3.

A final tabulation is two weeks away. The department said last year the final tally boosted the total by 613,763 acres.

Historically, farmers have taken from production fewer acres than they agreed to during the sign-up.

During last year's record enrollment, farmers signed up to divert more than 41.3 million acres and ended up the season taking 39.1 million from production.

Assuming normal attrition and the final acreage surge, the department's 38-million acre goal seemed on target.

Under the program, feed grain producers who want to share in price support loan benefits must agree to a minimum diversion of 20 per cent of their base acreage.

By deadline time, farmers had agreed to take about 17.7 million acres from production as the minimum qualification, plus an additional diversion of around 21.1 million acres.

Payments are made on the additional diverted acres, but not on the minimum requirement.

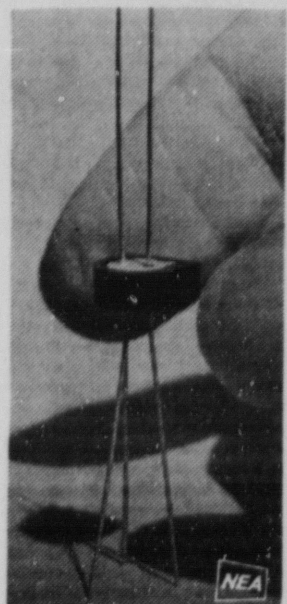

The department said the 1970 enrollment for feed grains was the second largest on record, exceeded only by the 1969 sign-up.

Officials said 1,562,428 farms were enrolled in this year's program, compared with 1,646,393 in 1969.

Wheat farmers, whose sign-up period also ended April 3, agreed to divert an additional 4,149,825 acres from their 1970 allotments, already trimmed to 45.5 million acres, the smallest in history of government programs.

Department officials had hoped farmers would divert more than four million acres from the allotment total this year.

Upland cotton producer in 20 states enrolled 15.9 million acres or 96 per cent of their 1970 allotments by the cotton sign-up deadline on March 20, the department said.

MIGHTY MITE gives no light but contains a tiny solid-state lamp and solid-state light-sensing device sandwiched together in an epoxy case. The lamp can be turned on and off about a million times a second, producing light pulses which the sensing device converts back to electrical energy. The GE coupler will act as a high-speed switch and electrical isolator in computers, eliminating any internal direct electrical connection.

STAGE IS SET FOR BUDGET BATTLE
JEFFERSON CITY — When Gov. Warren E. Hearnes opens the special budget session of the State Legislature this week, the mood is apt to be one of frustration and apprehension among several legislators.

The overwhelming defeat at the polls April 7 of the controversial tax reform measure has thrown a monkey wrench in the works and the road ahead of the Legislature promises to be bumpy.

The State Budget Office says that, without the additional $106 million the tax bill would have provided for the coming fiscal year, the amount budgeted out of the general revenue fund will have to be no more than $615 million. Last year's figure was $638 million.

State Budget Director John C. Vaughn said last week that Missouri will be forced to operate on an "austerity budget". He said the public schools will not get the $35 million increase in state aid promised to them last year, and that the capital improvements budget would have to be held to its current $9 million.

The budget director said new programs might have to be eliminated or sharply curtailed, and that some current ones may have to be altogether eliminated.

Proponents of the now-defeated tax measure echo the familiar question: "How can you start new programs when you can't finance the ones you have now?"

But there's another side. Those who campaigned against the income tax measure have repeatedly insisted that the state next year can and will successfully finance its public programs with the same amount of money available to them this year. All remains to be seen.

And there are those who feel that curtailments in the fields of education, mental health and welfare are inevitable. They say these programs will suffer if forced to operate on last year's budget if only because of inflation and rising costs.

Details on the new budget for the next fiscal year will be made public on April 20, five days after Gov. Hearnes opens the special budget session. In addition to the budget, the special session by law may consider only those legislative issues which the governor will make in his call April 15. Only then will Missourians know what lies ahead of the Legislature in its 60-day session.

There is speculation that many so-called emergency issues may be eliminated because of the income tax measure defeat and the lack of additional funds. But, no matter what, the session promises to be an interesting if not heated one.

UNIVERSITY SCIENTISTS, ENGINEERS SEEK POLLUTION
SOLUTION

At a time when most of the world is concerned about problems of environmental pollution, it is not surprising that the University of Missouri has taken upon itself an attempt to provide some of the answers.

Many colleges and schools of the University feel the problem has reached such proportions that they now are hard at work with complex research projects directly aimed at environmental control.

Professors at the College of Engineering have undertaken various programs toward fighting air pollution with the belief that engineering, combined with the social and physical sciences, can play a significant role in environmental control.

A civil engineering associate professor, Darrell King, has formulated a theory that may lead to methods for decelerating lake pollution and accelerating acid strip mine lake recovery. His process is known as stream self-purification.

Other engineering professors are working on methods to combat air pollution from burning hydrocarbon fuels for industrial automobile power.

The engineering faculty has developed two programs — air pollution conferences and summer field training courses in environmental sanitation — which bring people from many fields surroundings without the constant together who are involved in ringing of telephones.

finding and applying effective solutions to the pollution problems.

But the College of Engineering is not alone in its efforts to find ways to control the environment. The School of Medicine along with the College of Agriculture and the School of Veterinary Medicine are also equally concerned. The School of Veterinary Medicine hopes to find answers to the effects of air pollution on humans through technical experiments on small animals.

And, the School of Medicine is engaged in a project headed by Dr. M.S. Fahim to study the effects of DDT on children whose mothers were exposed to insecticide during pregnancy.

At least a dozen departments in the College of Agriculture, which has been a national pioneer in the study of the environment and ecology, are involved in finding ways to curb pollution and its effects.

The University believes that a first step is to make students aware of the magnitude of the environmental problem and many courses related to ecology and pollution control are offered. Research is in high gear by both faculty and students.

Clean air and water are the premiums, and the University of Missouri, in its own way, is actively doing something about it.

ARMED FORCES

DI AN, VIETNAM (AHTNC) March 13—Capt. Edward D. Hulshof, 25, son of Mrs. Stella Hulshof, Conran, Mo., completed an 18-day course at the U.S. Army, Vietnam Advisor School near Di An.

The school prepares "teacher-soldiers" to help step up the "Vietnamization" of the war. These hand-picked soldiers, designated as Mobile Advisory Teams (MAT), are prepared by the school to go into the field to teach their combat skills to the Vietnamese forces that provide security to village hamlets.

With their acquired combat skills, the Vietnamese forces in turn protect the Regional Development Teams (RDT), which is an organization much like the Peace Corps. RDT personnel travel to rural hamlets offering advice in crop production, building construction and economic improvement to villagers.

To prepare the MAT advisors for their job, the school trains the men in such things as weapons instruction techniques, local customs, and the basics of the Vietnamese language.

Capt. Hulshof's wife, Sylvia, lives at 232 Glenmar, San Antonio, Tex.

The course was completed Feb. 28.

BLITHEVILLE AFB, ARK., 23 MAR. 1970 — Blitheville's library joined 29 other SAC base libraries in celebrating a banner year during 1969, according to Mrs. Mary E. Flinn, base librarian. The library circulated 49,154 books last year, or roughly five books per person for the year.

WICHITA, Kan. — Rex A. Rackley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ora E. Rackley of R. R. 1, Parma, Mo., has been promoted to airman first class in the U.S. Air Force.

Airman Rackley is a weapons mechanic at McConnell AFB, Kan., with the 419th Tactical Fighter Training Squadron, a unit of the Tactical Air Command which provides combat units for air support of U.S. ground forces.

The airman is a 1966 graduate of Parma High School. His wife, Susan, is the daughter of Mrs. Mary Melton of 703 Montgomery, Sikeston, Mo.

John Wayne Gets Patch Treatment on Return to Movie Set

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Everyone on the movie set of "Rio Lobo" turned their backs on John Wayne when he returned from Los Angeles with his first Oscar.

The 62-year-old actor grinned when they turned around Wednesday, all of them sporting black eye patches-including his horse.

The patches were part of a gag to commemorate the Duke's portrayal of a hard-drinking one-eyed lawman in the film "True Grit" which won him the Academy Award's best actor prize.

Behind the actors was a replica of the Oscar, also wearing a patch.

Hot Rogers, Defeated, Calls Election 'Foul'

CARUTHERSVILLE — Caruthersville Mayor B.F. (Hot) Rogers, defeated Tuesday in a bid for a fourth term, has called "foul" in the wake of election results.

Rogers, who has served 12 years as mayor, was defeated by businessman Bill Inman by 107 votes. About 2,000 votes were cast.

The outgoing mayor said a three-part coalition was necessary to bring about his defeat.

He described the newly formed Fair Election Committee, which stationed workers at polls to "prevent" election violations as "actually an Inman committee."

"They violated the law when they passed out a pamphlet that had nothing to do with the city election."

Mayor Rogers said the committee had passed out a pamphlet that had nothing to do with the city election.

Mayor Rogers said the committee had passed out a pamphlet which, said it was illegal to transport voters to polling places.

"This is a mayor-city council form of government. That statute applies only to the city managerial forms of government," Rogers said.

He said the statute also had been published in a local newspaper and broadcast on a Caruthersville radio station. Rogers said he was considering legal action against the newspaper and the radio station. He did not make clear on what grounds he would file such a suit.

Richard Pankey, co-chairman of the Fair Election Committee, said the committee was formed to "improve the quality of elections in Caruthersville and Pemiscot county. Everything we did was open and public. Inman had nothing to do with the committee and I had nothing to do with him."

Pankey said the committee had asked the radio station and newspaper to publish the statute, along with other Missouri election statutes, but they had not passed out a pamphlet. He said that Rogers' charges were "ridiculous."

Rogers said another member of the "coalition" which defeated him was school supt. Carl Hutchison, "who took specific aim at me over differences on tax rates of school district."

Finally, Rogers said, a preacher, whom he did not name, "took specific aim at me for no reason at all."

Rogers, who is also Pemiscot county collector, said he has "no ill feelings toward anyone. I have the city's interest at heart."

He said he would offer Inman any assistance he was asked to give. "Mr. Inman is a compromise candidate, but he knows nothing about all this."

Inman was in Jefferson City Thursday and not available for comment.

Three incumbent city councilmen were defeated and two vacant positions on the council were filled.

Incumbents Gilbert Hazel, Leslie Knott, and Dee Barnes were defeated by Robert Tillman, Wayne Bond, and Terry Wilson. Also elected to the council were Perry Going and Woodrow Watkins. The vacancies were created by the resignations of councilmen Charley Crow, last November, and Raymond Francis, who resigned last month to serve on the Fair Election committee.

City officials E. R. Stone, police chief; Earl Bennett, collector; Cyril Hendricks, city attorney; Mrs. Obyie Parker, assessor; and J. M. Jefferies, treasurer, ran for re-election unopposed.

The newly elected city officials will take office at Tuesday's city council meeting.

SIDE GLANCES by Gill Fox

Lowering of Rate Won't Reach Citizens

COLUMBIA — The announced lowering of the prime rate of interest by a number of major banks in the country was called a "welcome sign for the economy" today by Robert J. Gaddy, president of the 665-member Missouri Bankers Association, but he said the move "unfortunately will have little or no effect on the borrowing needs of most Missourians."

Gaddy, president and chairman of the board of the Tower Grove Bank and Trust Company in St. Louis, pointed out that Missouri law currently prohibits charging more than 8% interest to individuals and unincorporated businesses—a half percent less than the prime rate which has been in effect in most banks across the country.

"While I'm sure everyone agrees a lowering of the prime rate is a welcome sign for the economy, it unfortunately will have little, or no, effect on the borrowing needs of most Missourians."

"As the name implies, 'prime rate' is the rate of interest a bank is able to offer its largest and most reliable borrowers, and this is normally large corporations."

"In Missouri, however, all financial institutions are prohibited by law from charging more than 8% interest to individuals and unincorporated businesses, except for loans under $500 and installment loans. With the exception of Illinois, all other states in this area allow interest rates of up to 9 and 10% and even Illinois recently eliminated the ceiling on all business loans."

"With our current interest limits, during periods of 'tight' money, such as we've been experiencing over the past year, available money for the people in Missouri becomes doubly scarce. Institutions outside the state, where local banks often go to obtain lendable funds for their local customers, are not interested in sending money into Missouri at 8% when they can make more elsewhere. This means that less money is coming into the state for investment than would normally come in. And, with declining deposits, Missouri banks also have less funds available for loans than they normally would have."

"This is the reason that a number of organizations, including the Missouri Bankers Association, have been urging changes in Missouri's interest laws that would allow an increase in the ceiling for individuals and would exclude all businesses from the restrictions."

"We still feel this change would best serve the needs of Missouri farmers, small businessmen, the housing industry and individuals seeking personal loans. And it's the only way that I can see that money will become very readily available in Missouri for at least some months to come."

SYMINGTON URGES HIGHER PRIORITY FOR WATER PROJECTS

WASHINGTON, D. C. Water, it has often been noted, is perhaps the most dynamic force of change on earth. Man cannot live without water. Even if he could live "by bread alone," it takes some 300 gallons of water a day to grow enough wheat to make a subsistence amount of bread.

Despite its great importance, although we are not running out of water per se, we are rapidly depleting our usable water supply.

It is sad but true that at a time when we should be accelerating water resource development, the whole program is being hamstrung because of lack of funds, partly because many project benefits receive only passing consideration when evaluated. I am confident that if all projects benefits were measured and their positive contribution to our national goals demonstrated, water resource programs would certainly be accorded greater priority in our national budget.

RURAL DEVELOPMENT. It is a fact that water projects can be of inestimable benefit in promoting development in rural areas. They give many small towns and communities a new lease on life, and because they bring economic development, employment, and recreation they help stem the flow of youth from farming communities. Today, however, water resource projects are largely justified in terms of their "primary" benefits, which result directly from a project, such as: flood control, production of hydroelectric power, local water supplies, and navigation.

"Secondary" benefits, human benefits such as raising the standard of living and recreation are given little consideration. Experience proves, however, that these Technical Sergeant John N. O'Guin, NCOAGA secretary, said, "The Association was formed to develop and maintain high standards of discipline and military community matters and promote projects to enhance the position and prestige of the Air Force noncommissioned officers."

"The Association sells Christmas trees, fruit cakes, and also runs the concession stand at the softball field during the summer. Proceeds from these sales send a local boy and girl to a summer school; assist local youth groups and activities and assist other base organizations with contributions."

The new officers were installed at an Installation Banquet which was held 28 March 1970 at the Noncommissioned Officers Open

Hearnes to Send Message to Legislature

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes will not address a joint session of the Legislature when it convenes in special session next Wednesday afternoon but will send his message to the lawmakers in written form.

The session is limited to the topics he outlines. In addition to a budget for 1970-71, he is reported preparing several other non-fiscal requests.

Monday is a state holiday, Jefferson's Birthday, and the governor has no activities scheduled.

Tuesday he will speak informally to the annual sophomore pilgrimage of high school students sponsored by the Missouri Federation of Women's Clubs.

Thursday night he will be guest speaker in a lecture series at Cape Girardeau and Friday night he will attend a testimonial dinner in St. Louis for Rep. Walter Meyer, D-St. Louis.

"Indirect" benefits can be potentially greater or more significant than the direct benefits.

It is my firm conviction that all beneficial effects of a project should be measured. Certainly secondary benefits should no longer be regarded as secondary considerations in justifying a project.

RECREATION. In addition to the low significance attached to secondary benefits, a number of benefits have been consistently underestimated, particularly recreation.

We should give far greater emphasis to recreation because water-oriented recreation is number one among Americans today, and not only stimulates economic development and enhances the attractiveness of living in a state or locality, but also plays an important role in the promotion of tourism.

Tourism in our State is now second only to agriculture, with over 20 million out-of-state visitors spending their money with us last year.

BUDGET. In fiscal year 1971, out of a Federal budget in excess of $200 billion, only 62 cents out of every $100 is proposed for the Corps of Engineers to enable better water control and comparable wise development programs in the United States. So as to put this into perspective, that amount is less than two weeks cost of the war in Vietnam.

It is high time for us to realize that a continued supply of fresh clean water is as vital to our overall security, more vital to our prosperity, than, for example, the space program.

Band Leader Stan Kenton Not Opposed to All Rock

EMPORIA, Kan. (AP)—Stan Kenton settled his long, 6-6 frame into a chair near a motel window overlooking Interstate 35 at the edge of Emporia recently, far removed from the ballrooms, night clubs, concert halls, and recording studios that have been his home for nearly 30 years as a band leader.

"People say 'music is not like it was in the good old days.' Well, that's sickening. It's just not true," he declared.

"There is a lot of rock music that is trash, just junk, but there is a lot that is very sophisticated, well put together and thought out and has content."

"Much of the music that we played in the past was bad music, music that we believed in at the time. I thought it was great, but time proved there wasn't any sense to some of it."

He smiles, and his lean, craggy face and pale blue eyes mirror the joy and the frustration he experienced with some of his big band jazz in the past.

"Kenton, 58, spends much of his time now on college and high school campuses with young musicians in experimental orchestras. He lectures, conducts and plays piano with their organizations, discusses trends and forms in music and encourages them to develop their talent."

He was in Emporia to perform with the College of Emporia Choral and Jazz Ensemble the premiere of a four-part jazz cantata based on Christ's Sermon on the Mount, "The Beatitudes."

He is in Wichita, Kan., and raised in Los Angeles, Kenton's mother was a classical pianist. She started teaching him piano twice, first at the age of 10 and again when he was 12. Both attempts failed.

"It wasn't until I was about 14," Kenton recalls, "that I happened to hear a little combo playing what someone told me was 'jazz' that I made up my mind to play piano. I went home and told my mother I wanted to learn to play jazz and she said, 'what is that?'"

Later, Kenton's ambition was simply to become a studio musician, on call for various performances in the movie or radio studios of Hollywood.

Then he became interested in composition and started doing some original things and arranging them. "But you know, I had a hell of a time trying to get anyone to play them."

"Finally I organized a band just so I could get to play my own material and hear what it sounded like with all the instrumentation."

The band landed a couple of jobs and a short time later began the first of a long series of engagements at the Balboa Beach, Calif., ballroom that would propel Kenton's unique style of big band jazz into the national limelight.

Youth Revival

At Morehouse — A youth revival will be held in the Baptist church by a team from the Baptist student union, Southeast Missouri State College, Cape Girardeau, Friday through Sunday. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Tom McLean, a junior at the college, will be the preacher. McLean was appointed by the Southern Baptist foreign mission board to serve in Uganda, Africa this summer.

Others who will attend the revival are Bruce Welker, Twila Gale, Marilyn Burge, and Charles Kinnerman.

The pastor is Ernest Bragg. A nursery will be provided.

ALTON, Ill. (AP) — A few Madison County farmers are finding that leasing farm machinery is one way of controlling one's resources. Farmers have found that rapid changes in technology and the expanding farm business have created a need for new machines. This can cause a severe strain on the normal sources of investment capital.

Custom hiring to get the job done or renting the machine by the job or by the season can relieve a tight capital situation and keep capital free for other uses in the farm business.

He continues to record and to take the big band on the road for two to three month tours annually, "mixing a little of the old with what we feel are new directions in music, experimenting and trying to grow."

But turning to rock music and youth again, Kenton says emphatically: "You can't categorize. There is good and bad in all of it. It's a part of the experimentation necessary for growth. People get hung up with images."

"When we were playing a lot of music a few years ago in the progressive jazz field, people would declare that we were playing all wrong notes and all we were doing was playing a lot of cacophony and nonsense."

"I remember I used to tell the musicians: 'For goodness sake, men, we're playing this music that sounds strange to people, now all you have to do is look and act strange in addition to it and we're never going to get this thing off the ground.'"

"The image thing has a lot to do with success or failure," Kenton continued. "People see protestors and demonstrators on TV with the long hair and beards and far out clothes and they think anybody dressed in this fashion is a kook and that all the looks ought to be done away with. They don't stop to think whether the guy has a point or not, it's just that they're kooks."

"Rock is a primary form of jazz music. It's a first grade in jazz and as the young musicians develop they begin to want to say more. They begin to want to reach a little deeper than the surface of the music."

"There was a time, when I was younger," Kenton reflected, "I thought everything about this world stinks. Things that had to do with tradition, things that had to do with provincialism. I felt, 'it's all got to change. Just destroy it and build anew.'"

"Now, I find as I get older there are a lot of pretty good things about tradition and I've seen a lot of modern things I wouldn't spit on. They're shallow. They don't ignite any fantasy, they don't do anything. They are not functional. It's just a static idea that never made it."

"I have a much higher regard now for the valid traditional things, things that have been proven worthwhile."

"The same is true with the rock kids," Kenton observed. "Those who have imagination and a creative desire to express themselves will discover the valid traditions and progress. Those who don't will eventually come to the end of the road and never know why."

Court Upholds Woman's Conviction For Killing Child

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court upheld today the conviction of Elma Jean Lamborn for killing six-year-old Mary Elizabeth Lamborn by slamming her head against a bathtub, causing a brain tumor and skull fracture.

Mrs. Lamborn was sentenced to 30 years in prison. Christopher Lamborn, the father, also was sentenced to 30 years in the case.

The little girl was found dead in bed in the Laborns' trailer home in Carter County Feb. 28, 1969. The coroner found more than 100 bruises and scratches on the child's body.

In another decision the Supreme Court agreed for the second time that William Ernest Ussery was properly convicted of murder in Greene County and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Judging will be Tuesday afternoon. Awards will be made during ceremonies Friday.

Barkett's entry is on the growth of wheat. Gruidel's entry deals with the effects of thermal pollution.

Last week Gruidel was named one of seven students from Southeast Missouri to attend the state finals of the Missouri Junior Academy of Science. Gruidel's entry is the same as will be entered in the district science fair. The event will be held April 27 in Warrensburg.
